Dear Workman Family,

One measure that helps our children to have success in education and in life is to help them to establish good habits, and help them to break bad habits. This is most easily done when we start in their elementary years. The longer we hold onto bad habits, the harder they are to break, and likewise, the more we practice good habits, the more they become a part of our daily lives. Let’s continue to model good habits and help our children solidify good habits such as being at school, on time, everyday, and being responsible with our learning.

We are in the midst of our fall fundraiser, and I would challenge each family to help with this effort, so that our PTA can continue to offer great learning experiences for our children. I will commit to finding some items to order personally to help out in this effort, as well. When we all do a little, we accomplish amazing feats! Thanks for working together with us to enhance the lives of our children!

I want to thank you for all that you do to work together with us to enhance the lives of our students.
